But in no one feature of the exercises has there been as great an interest taken by the students and the public as in the debate between Messrs, Alonzo Hefflin, of Stafford, and Jack Powell, of Spotsylvania, over the question, "Resolved, That a good education is an beneficial to the business man as to the professional man." It was a deep subject, but both debaters handled the question with an earnestness, ability and skill that showed great study and a most thorough preparation.

Mr. Powell, for the negative, was given the decision.

Rev. C. W. Brooks followed the debaters in a most forceful and stirring appeal to the public to continue their generous and hearty support of Professor Glikeson in lins work here, and the hearty and spontaneous enthuisasm with which his words were received showed that he was in close touch with his audience, speech along the same lines, His was a fervent, earnest, eloquent plea for botter educational advantages for all, that held his hearts speliboung until the last words were untered.

Another Chapter in Story of Deal to Consolidate Norfolk and Southern With Transit Co.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., June 2.-S. Gordon Cumming, of Hampton, counsel for the Newport News and Old Point Electric Company, appeared in the Rallway United States Court this afternoon on an order issued by Judge Waddill to show cause why he should not be fined for contempt.

The complainant was Attorney Bickford, of Newport News, one of the receivers for the Hampton Roads Electric Railway Company, an opposition road, which is in the hands of receivers. The charge was that Cumming and the Newport News and Old Point Rail-way attempted to block the work of the opposition road in the town of Phoebus. Considerable testimony was adduced, but the contempt was not established, and Attorney Bickford withdrew the compilaint.

Judge Waddill, in a verbal opinion, however, warned the attorney for the Newport News and Old Point Company that the road must not interfere with the orders of the court.
NORFOLK AND SOUTHERN,

day in New York in connection with the merger of the Chesapeake Transit Company and the Norfolk and Southern Ralikay.

Judge Greenbaum, of the Supreme Court, heard evidence and reserved his decision on the application of William H. Pagé, Jr., attorney of record, and Ellhu Root, counsel for Walter S. Johnston, a New York banker, to continue the preliminary injunction: granted the plaintiff against the Norfolk and Southern, the Chesapeake Transit, the Colonial Trust Company, of Pittsburg; Albert H. Pilnt, John T. Bacon and J. C. Chaplin, as individuals, syndicate managers and directors interested in the corporations naimed.

The complaint sets forth that the Norfolk and Southern Raliroad Company is a prosperous corporation, and shows, during the past year, net earnings of about eight per cent. upon the capital stock. The defendant, Chesapeake Transit Company, the papers say, is an insolvent enterprise, the stock and bonds of which have a merely nominal value. A syndicate, the individual defendants in this action, purchased three-fourths of the capital stock of the Norfolk and Southern Raliroad and have obtained control of the Board of Directors of this road. The plaintiff claims that the purchase of the stock was financed by the Colonial Trust Company, of Pittsburg, which advanced necessary funds and took the stock in its own name as collateral security.

BONUS TO SYNDICATE.

It was claimed by Mr. Page, in his argument, that the syndicate managers proposed to issue new bonds of the railroad company to the amount of $1,000,000, out of the proceeds of which the Colonial Trust Company is to be repaid its advances, and then the stock is to be delivered to the syndicate managers, who are to distribute 25 per cent, among the members of the syndicate as a bonus. The remainder, Mr. Page alleged, was its advances, and then the stock is to be delivered to the syndicate managers, who are to distribute 25 per cent. among the members of the syndicate as a bonus. The remainder, Mr. Page alleged, was to be distributed among the syndicate managers and, presumably the Colonial Trust Company.

It is alleged that $150,000 of the new issue of bonds is to be used to replace or retire outstanding bonds to that amount of the Chesapeake Transit Company. The complaint goes on to say that the action of the individual defendants is inspired by their direct personal pecuniary interest, which is in conflict with their duty as trustees of the Norfolk and Southern Raliroad.

Paul D. Cravath, altorney for the defendants, denied the charges, and said that the scheme had been abandoned.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch: Sir.-Your "special" from this place in your this morning's paper is calculated to produce a wrong impression as to the to produce a wrong impression as to the trial here on yesterday of E. C. Wooldridge and Charlia Forbes, upon the charge of burning the residence of John S. Forbes on the night of March 3d.

The testimony of Edice Spencer, who arrested Wooldridge, was, as your correspondent reports it, that Wooldridge, when arrested said, "I have been expecting this for some time." The fact is that Wooldridge having heard that he was suspected, wrote a letter to Peter A. Forbes, clerk of the court (and brother of John S. Forbes), saying that he had heard that he was suspected, and would like to be arrested at once and have the matter investigated and cleared up.

Again, the testimony of Spencer, as reported in your paper, was that Wooldridge told him that Charlie Forbes was within four and a half miles of that reported in your paper, was that Wooldridge told him that Charile Forbes was within four and a half miles of that place-namely, Forbes's postoffice. The fact is that Mr. Fogus, chief of police of Farmyllie, testified that he was present when this conversation took place, and that Spencer first told Wooldridge at Forbes's postoffice that Charile Forbes had been seen by Joei Harvey to pass his house on Saturday morning. Wooldridge then gave Spencer the written memorandum, which you publish, directing him to telephone Winston McKinney to see Joei Harvey and find out all about the matter of Forbes being seen in the neighborhood. Fogus said there was no impression made on his mind at all tending to implicate Wooldridge. Again, your special says the measurement of the shoe tracks corresponded with Wooldridge's shoe shown in court. The fact is the witness stated that the shoe tracks were made by a shoe with the shoe shown in court had the heel entirely worn off. There was no correspondence.

Again, Spencer testified, according to as the shoe shown in court had the heel entirely worn off. There was no correspondence.

Again, Spencer testified, according to your special, that Wooldridge said, "You have one of us now; why don't you get the other two?" Fogus said that Spencer told Forbes there were the shoe tracks of three men, and that Forbes then said, in a bantering way, well, as you have one, why don't you get the other two? but that it was said in a way which made no impression whatever of a confession of participation in the crime by Wooldridge.

The commissioner of ball to-day granted ball to Wooldridge and Forbes in the sum of $5,000 each. The friends of Wooldridge were present in large numbers ready and able to give ten times the amount of ball required, but on account of the bitterness of feeling among the the large Forbes connection in Wooldridge's neighborhood, which might seem to threaten violence to Wooldridge, and also on account of the deeply indignant feeling of Wooldridge against those who caused his arrest, which might lead him (being a high-tompered man) to some violence against them. Wooldridge's counsel and friends thought it best for him to remain in jall for the present, and he yielded to their advice. But he can be liberated any moment he desires, as can also Forbes if he gives the required bond.

I write you this hasty communication to counteract the altogether erroneous impression which your to-day's "special" is calculated to make. The result of the trial on yesterday was a widely expressed sentiment that nothing more than vague suspicion was elicited, and no specific fact whatever implicating, there are nothing but suspicious circumstances to implicate Charlie Forbes.
